

International Symposium

Economics of Land, Water and Nature Conservation in China

October 7th, 2011

'Felix Hausdorff' International Meeting Centre (IBZ)
Festsaal

Program

13.00-13.15

Welcome Address

Volker Beckmann, Greifswald University

13.15-15.15

Session 1

Water Use and Conservation

Shi Xiaoping, Nanjing Agricultural University

Water Rights and Water Distribution in Ecological Vulnerable Areas in China

Niels Thevs, Greifswald University

Water productivity and ecosystem conservation at the Tarim River, China

Shuyi Feng, Nanjing Agricultural University

Policy Options for Agricultural Non-point Source Pollution Alleviation: A Case Study in Taihu Lake Basin, China

Konrad Ott and Lilin Yu, Greifswald University

To Save or Not to Save? Scenario Outlines on Hetao Irrigation Area and Wuliangsuhai-Lake

15.15–15.45

Coffee break

15.45–17.15

Session 2
Land Use and Conservation

Tan Rong, Zhejiang University
Puzzles of Land-Administration Reform in China

Volker Beckmann, Greifswald University
The Increasing Scarcity of Land: Drivers and Responses

Lieske Voget-Kleschin, Greifswald University
Foreign Direct Investment in Land: Landgrab or Development Opportunity?

17.15-17.30

Closing remark
Volker Beckmann, Greifswald University

Interested scientists, students and guest are cordially invited to participate in the International Symposium.

Participation is free of charge.